I sell the concept of love. But don't believe in it. Until her.

Although I created the world's most popular dating app, I secretly don't believe in love. In fact, I think people who do are fairy tale chasing fools. And soulmates? Only idiots would buy into that concept.

When my secret gets out, my professional life and my billion dollar company are in jeopardy. In a desperate move, I agree to let a matchmaker help repair my image and find the perfect woman for me.

But what if soulmates are real? And mine is the feisty matchmaker herself?

Can I escape my fear and claim my soulmate? Or will I lose her? Lose everything?

 This is a full-length romance novel with an HEA, no cheating and no cliffhanger. ***
