Doug and Laura thought they bought Galaxy Farm, but the old house is possessing them instead...

Doug and Laura Locke are New Yorkers who need a fresh start, so they move to Galaxy Farm, an old thoroughbred stable in Tennessee. There Doug finds the inspiration to write his epic novel, and Laura renews her passion for teaching. They also rediscover the love that first drew them together.

But the home has many secrets. There's a graveyard hidden at the property's edge, and tragic deaths stalked the previous owners. Doug becomes entranced by the abandoned taxidermy in the attic. Laura falls under the spell of the ghosts of twin girls she meets in the old nursery.

Only Teresa, a local antiques dealer, senses the danger. She experiences gruesome premonitions of horrible events to come. She knows she must convince Laura of the threat before the dark force in the house can execute its plan. But time is short and something seems to be very wrong with Doug...
